about 6.45 p.m. on September 1 he was told that an Independent Viking had had an oil spillage, which had been cleaned up.

Later he went over to the aircraft which had just about finished loading. There were two engineers there, one of Independent Air Travel, Blackbushe, and the other a slim man. He bushe and something mentioned about a simulation of the standard something mentioned about a simulation of the heard something mentioned about a gasket.

One of the engineers appeared definitely worried about it.

"I heard the engineer telephone Blackbushe. He said he was quite worried, and the way he was putting it over was that he was telling them off at the other end very angrily."

A MERICAN art dealer Mr. Edwin A Shalagh flew to Britain by jet on a business tour and visited Bourne-

For some years Mr. Standhaft has been sending about 1,000 Victorian oil paintings a year to the States, where they are much in demand.

While Mr. Shalagh was in the town he bought 60 paintings from Cutlers and will visit Bournemouth again before returning to the States or December 14 if Mr. Standhaft has been able to make another collection for his selection before that date.

Sudden death

Mr. C. G. Stone, of 69 Leybourne-avenue, Ensbury Park, believed to be between 50 and 60, collapsed and died yesterday lunchtime in Bournemouth Arcade.

He says Major Friend "has declared himself to be fundamentally anti-Balfour Declaration, anti-zionist, and anti-Israel."

doubts about whether it was alive or not.

The case of the shell was split, and the percussion cap was missing. It was removed to the police yard for safety until the military arrived.

An Army Southern Command spokesman said yesterday: "We are sending an inspector to look at it, probably tomorrow. We have satisfied ourselves it won't blow up. You can sleep quietly in your beds tonight."

Jump over the barrel

All would-be barrel jumpers on ice can start getting their skates on, for Johnny Neal, manager of the Westover Ice Riok is ho'ding a competition again this year.

The final will be held just after Christmas. There will be a solid silver cup for the winner and silver medals for the finalists.

Tory quits over Jewish question

PROMINENT member of Bournemouth East and Christ-A church Conservative Association has taken exception to remarks about the Jews made by the association's prospective parliamentary candidate Major J. Friend.

Mr. Barrington Myers, a Christchurch councillor and local solicitor, has registered his protest by resigning from the party's Christchurch Central Ward Committee.

although he is anti-Balfour Declaration and anti-zionist, he is NOT anti-Israel.

"I am not the slightest bit anti-Jewish," he told the Bournemouth Times. "I believe in freedom for people of all faiths in this country —as long as they owe their allegiance to Britain first.

"One of my best friends is a Jew,
